

Warrnambool Computer Group

Gadgets February 2018

Concept Pen with test on Literacy

Concept Pen – with Test on Literacy - Modern man prefers a computer and a keyboard instead of an old fashioned pen, for a number of reasons. One of them is the system “spelling checker”, that are built into word processing and internet browsers. Enthusiasts from Germany decided to fight illiteracy in an interesting way. They developed a PEN that will vibrate if you write the incorrect word. The device LERNSTIFT, runs on LINUX and supports English and German.

Another product will copy from hand writing on paper to a Mobile Phone, via wireless.

For more info check web site

Lernstift

